as we see it

"We're a tray family," a lovely lady told us recently. "My children don't know what it is to eat dinner at a table. Every evening we haul our trays up to the TV set, which is in our guest room, to eat. It's awful. Why don't you do something about it?"

"It's your problem," we pointed out, "and it's up to you to solve." Then we suggested that most homes have definite times for eating, and television is not permitted to interfere with meals.

"Hah," she said. "Now you tell me! It's too late. We'd never get away with turning off the set during dinner."

Perhaps, instead of "too late," she should have said, "too much trouble." It's never too late to make a new start in the right direction, if the new start is worth the effort. And getting the youngsters to eat dinner at a table should be worth the effort.

One easy solution for our problem-mother might be to have the set develop a mysterious ailment that would require a couple of weeks' study by a repairman. In the absence of television, the kiddies might be introduced to a dinner table. There they possibly could become interested in Dad's report of the day at the office, or even Mother's blow-by-blow of the afternoon's Scrabble game. They might even learn to take part in the table chatter and find out about conversation, which their ancestors enjoyed in place of television.

Don't get us wrong. We love television. But family life is pleasant, too, and one should not obviate the other. Indeed, TV can be an important part of family life. Just a part, though.

PERRY COMO returns Aug. 23 as the first in a long parade of stars returning to TV after their vacations . . . The BETTY HUTTON show, leading off NBC's new "spectaculars" Sept. 12, will be titled "Satins and Spurs." MAX LIEBMAN produces, with BETTY's musical numbers to be staged by her ex-husband, CHARLES O'CURRAN.

LIEBMAN, incidentally, is demanding that any stars he signs for his "spectaculars" do no other TV whatsoever for six weeks prior to his show. News of this broke when TV Playhouse tried to sign JUDY HOLLIDAY for the first PADDY CHAYEFSKY script of the new season, only to be told JUDY could not accept the assignment . . . ANN SOTHERN takes over the second "spectacular" Sept. 25, in "Lady in the Dark."

GEORGE BURNS will personally produce the first group of Father Knows Best telefilms, new situation comedy starring ROBERT YOUNG and replacing The Web Sunday nights . . . CBS is building a new show around comedian ORSON BEAN, but has no plans to continue ORSON's Blue Angel after the summer.

ABC kicks off its Saturday afternoon college football schedule Sept. 18 with the California-Oklahoma game, will televise 26 additional weeks of collegiate sports after the football season, including track, baseball, hockey, etc. . . . With Colonel Flack switching from live to film, shooting is scheduled for end of August in both New York and Hollywood. ALAN MOWBRAY, FRANK JENKS star.

Du Mont planning to move The Goldbergs back a half-hour on Tuesday nights when BISHOP SHEEN's Life Is Worth Living returns . . . The Justice program can't show a percolator on screen. The instant coffee sponsor makes no other type and is afraid of plugging a competing brand.

That Oct. 24 "spectacular" marking the electric industry's diamond jubilee will be the biggest TV show yet. With DAVID O. SELZNICK producing, the show will carry a $1,000,000 budget and be seen on at least 310 stations.

HOLLYWOOD

Dan Jenkins reports:

HUMPHREY BOGART has nodded at least half his head to a plea that he do "Petrified Forest" for the new Chrysler "spectacular" show sometime in February. Show, to present three plays and a musical each month, opens Sept. 30 with BETTY GRABLE in her TV debut, starred with husband HARRY JAMES. MARIO LANZA will also be aboard. Second show, drama titled "Climax," will star DICK POWELL.

NBC is auditioning KEEFE BRASSELLE for a possible five-a-week daytime show . . . WALT DISNEY has completed a 50-minute "Davy Crockett" film on location in Tenn. and Va. for his upcoming ABC Disneyland. He has also signed DR. WERNHER VON BRAUN, ranking space scientist, as technical consultant on his "Trip to Mars."

The supply of available old feature films is just about exhausted, as is the TV audience. All that's left now are in the vaults of the major studios—and they're not about to be sprung . . . PHIL HARRIS has been pencilled in for an NBC show based on the "I and Claudia" short stories.

Ziv is already in production with a Corliss Archer TV film series with ANN BAKER in the title role. MARY BRIAN and JOHN ELDREDGE are the parents, BOBBY ELLIS will play Dexter. The original TV Corliss, in a live version three years ago, was LUGENE SANDERS.

ARTHUR LAKE, the original Dagwood, is plotting a pilot film called Meet the Family—his . . . Still in the gleam-in-the-eye stage is an NBC project to star EDDIE FISHER in a two-hour, four-network $1,000,000 "spectacular" based on the life of IRVING BERLIN . . . GUY MADISON has signed a long-term contract with 20th Century Fox, calling for a picture a year. His first, with CLARK GABLE and JANE RUSSELL: "The Tall Men."

JON HALL will use his Ramar of the Jungle profits to make a new film series, South Sea Stories, in which he'll star with LINDA DANSEN as a sort of South Sea Tarzan. Anyway, he'll wear a sarong . . . Don't be surprised to see MARTIN and LEWIS take over Paramount's "Road" movies. HOPE and CROSBY have no time.

JOAN DAVIS and BILL BENDIX will guest on each other's shows occasionally this coming season. If it works, it might start a trend. Ricky Ricardo, for instance, might take a course in English under Connie Brooks . . . PINKY LEE is making an album of children's records to be released before Christmas.

Abbott and Costello: friends most of time

'INSIDERS' WHISPER TV TEAMS FEUD VIOLENTLY, BUT . . .

One of the favorite occupational pastimes of the inveterate theater-goer is turning to the person in the next seat and remarking of two performers on stage: "Actually, you know, they hate each other like poison." The remark is generally directed either at a pair of romantic leads or a comedy team.

It follows, human nature being what it is, that television viewers, too, have been made suspicious of the actual relationship existing between any two given teamsters. It is smart to be on the inside, and it is always the insider who knows for a fact—if it can be called that—that Desi beats Lucy when they are home, that Burns hasn't spoken to Allen for 14 years and that Martin and Lewis hate each other with a cordiality that must be seen to be believed. The insider, naturally, has seen it.

Of them all, there is a grain of truth only in the recent Martin and Lewis "feud," a mild little donny-brook which lasted no more than two weeks and would, in any other community, have been dismissed as a normal fit of pique. A fit of pique in Hollywood, however, automatically assumes the proportions of a misdirected grand passion.

During the filming of their new Paramount picture with a circus setting, Jerry Lewis had occasion to tell the film's producer that he didn't particularly go for the script. Backing him up, a little more vehemently, was Dean Martin, who especially didn't go for it because there wasn't enough of Martin in it. Jerry, normally a live-and-let-live sort of lad, soon got over his passing display of temper.

Dean, who has a hot temper, took further umbrage under the mistaken notion that his pal and sidekick had gone over to the producer's camp and was now in favor of the almost Martinless script. Hollywood's varied and assorted columnists, ever anxious to liven things up on a dull day, livened this one up to the point where the insider was now sure of his ground —Martin and Lewis, in his definitely wrong book, were sworn enemies.

Opposites, under the ancient law of physics, attract. Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis are about as opposite as it's possible to get without actually going in opposite directions. Dean, at 37, is an easygoing, almost lazy individual whose idea of heaven is a permanent attachment to a set of golf clubs and a round of night clubs. Jerry, only 28, is an undernourished dynamo who must either work or go crazy. The more talented of the two, he is a writer, a director, an idea man—and above all, an actor, be it comedy or pathos. He makes the decisions for the team, right or wrong. Dean generally goes along. When he doesn't, there's an argument. And once in a while the argument gets out of hand and into the you're-a-bum-and-you're-another stage.

The difference between the two extends even more sharply to their wives. Dean's wife, the former Jeanne Bieggers, is the blonde bombshell type. Patti Lewis, although a former band singer, is basically the homebody type. The two just don't hit it off and apparently consider it a waste of both time and effort to try to do anything about their disaffection.

Between the two boys, however, exists a friendship and mutual trust that goes just too deep to be impaired by any normal, now-and-again friction that can and does develop on the surface. They may squabble, but they don't fight.

For the record, there hasn't been a two-fisted fighting comic team since the heyday of Laurel and Hardy. These two clowns of the early talking movie days finally reached the point where each resented the other beyond tolerance and each finally walked out on the other.

Burns and Allen: this kiss is no ▶ act for a happily married pair.

◀ Laurel and Hardy: when they fought, no holds were barred.

The oddest relationship among comic teams is perhaps that which exists between Bud Abbott and Lou Costello. The greatest of buddies on stage, they seldom socialize and rarely see one another in private life. With them, comedy is strictly a business—and an eminently successful one. When the working day is over, each goes to his own home and that's that. They sometimes tend to get a little touchy on the subject of whose home is to be used for a picture layout, but diplomatic press agents have long since learned how to divide the honors on that one and trouble only infrequently exists between the two.

Of the married teams, hearts and flowers is the only possible theme. Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz, in fact, get along far better as a TV team than they did when they were working separately and seldom got to see one another. George Burns and Gracie Allen, married more years than most young stars are old, are as compatible as the comfortably average next-door neighbors. Anne Jeffreys and Bob Sterling just had their first baby. Ozzie and Harriet Nelson head up such a typical All-American family atmosphere as to be almost sickening to the cynical insider.

The insider did try to make something of the fact that Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca finally broke up, but the best way in the world to get a hand-tailored pulverized nose from one of them is to say something disparaging about the other. They broke up simply because they inevitably ran out of gas, as a team, after five straight years of 39 shows a season.

Oddly enough, the only real friction existing in any of today's comedy teams is more a question of frustration than friction. Paul Winchell actually lost a show in his efforts to prove he could stand alone without wooden-head Jerry Mahoney. And Edgar Bergen has for years, in a halfhearted sort of way, tried to effect at least a temporary separation from Charlie McCarthy. In July, he took a fling at the lead in a Kraft Theater production of "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," a performance which left many older viewers feeling grateful that Will Rogers was never a ventriloquist.

MRS. GOLDBERG PAYS A VISIT TO A NEXT-DOOR NEIGHBOR

In Du Mont's The Goldbergs, housewife Molly Goldberg keeps leaning from a tenement window and yoohooing to a next-door neighbor, one Mrs. Bloom. Far from the madding microphone and camera, however, Molly Goldberg is the modish writer-actress, Gertrude Berg, who commutes between swank diggings in Manhattan and Upper Westchester County, New York.

At the latter address, near Bedford Village, her next-estate neighbor—a considerable "Yoo hoo" away—is a sister television celebrity, whose usual characterization is as sophisticated as Mrs. Berg's isn't: tempestuous, tumultuous Tallulah Bankhead.

Though they've known each other quite a while—Molly has been Tallulah's guest on radio—it wasn't until just the other day that they got together for their first neighborly visit. A TV GUIDE photographer was on hand to record the historic event, highlighted by a tour of Tallulah's home, lunch (chicken salad and iced tea) and plans for a reciprocal lunch at Mrs. Berg's (blintzes and borsht.)

Cooking lore is discussed by 'Molly', Tallulah and maid, Lillian Oglesby. ▶

After the Wedding, What?

A REPORT ON COUPLES MARRIED ON 'BRIDE AND GROOM'

For eight years now—five in radio and three more on TV—boy and girl have been becoming man and wife with dreary monotony on Bride and Groom. Then, as soon as the knot is secured, they seem to drop painlessly into a maw of obscurity, never to be heard from again.

What happens to them? The question was put to John Nelson, the show's emcee, who has been plastered with more than 10 pounds of lipstick since he first began the punishing practice of kissing the program's bride-of-the-day. (The brides to date total a staggering 2183.)

Then: Gwen Harmon and James Tidd (above) being wed on Bride and Groom, June 12, 1953. John Nelson, show's emcee, stands at the left. Now: the couple, left, with two additions, baby Mike, two months, and dog Buttons. They live in New York where she's a singer with TV and Broadway credits. He's a press agent.

"Everything," says Nelson. "They get back from the honeymoon (a free one, paid for by Bride and Groom), settle down in their homes (furnished by Bride and Groom), have kids, move to the country, get into an occasional fight with the neighbors, go down to the beach in the summer—and maybe get a little high on New Year's Eve. In short, they behave just the same as everybody else."

Statistics? Nelson has a barrel of them. In the first place, 98 per cent of the couples are still in business together. (The show's divorce rate: under one per cent, or less than half the national average.) A total of 879 children have been born to Bride and Groom's brides and grooms (including seven named for John Nelson) and another couple of hundred small fry are on the way. Fifty-eight per cent of the couples live in urban areas and 32 per cent own their own homes—most of which are furnished with the $4,000,000 worth of merchandise given away on the show in eight years (staples are refrigerators, stoves, washing machines and cameras). Fifty-seven per cent of the home-owners also own their own cars and 73 per cent have TV sets. Of the TV owners, more than 90 per cent still watch Bride and Groom occasionally.

Jobs? Bride and Groom's husbands are used-car salesmen, advertising executives, doctors, lawyers, GIs, press agents, restaurateurs and speleologists; 300 of them still go to school and one is a professor of astrophysics.

Sixty-nine per cent of Bride and Groom's former brides are now hausfraus full time. Left over are stenographers, models, waitresses, fashion designers and dieticians. Sylvia Daneel, who was married on Bride and Groom when it was still a radio show in 1950, is a Broadway actress now (her latest: The Girl on the Via Flaminia) and her husband is a TV director. Gwen Harmon, who was "Miss Alabama" when she wed James Tidd last year, is now a musical comedy vocalist—and a mother. Mrs. Bernie Duhan, wed June 9, 1953, is a lady policeman. (Her husband's also a cop on the New York force).

One of the brides liked getting married on Bride and Groom so much that she now works for the program. Another has become a professional "guest" in other audience-participation shows. One bride persuaded her still-groggy spouse to buy the convertible Bride and Groom loaned the pair for their honeymoon—by selling all the rest of the program's gifts.

Although more than 2000 bride-

grooms have been hooked on the show, only one has had the temerity to express his regrets to Nelson in person. On his fifth wedding anniversary, this stalwart called Nelson (in New York) from California (collect) and cursed him roundly.

By and large, Nelson and his partners John Masterson and John Reddy, who write and produce the show, have found that when they make a match on Bride and Groom they usually make a couple of friends for life. The program, which was dreamed up by Masterson one night while he was riding through Niagara Falls on a train, has been marrying a willing couple every day on the air since 1946 and now has an audience of 2,000,000, many of whom apparently watch the show principally to enjoy a good cry. Every year Masterson, Reddy and Nelson get sacks of anniversary cards, birth announcements and chatty letters from their former "stars." Around Christmas time the mail is heavy with fruit cake, plum pudding and apple pan dowdy baked by the brides of yesteryear.

One of the bridegrooms, John Mathews, who at 75 was the oldest man ever wed on the show, sends Nelson a yearly birthday card on his —Mathews', that is—birthday. He's 77 now and his wife, whom he met, wooed and won in a series of Townsend Club soireés in California, is 75.

One man who never bothers to send a card is the singular Sigmund Welt, of Brooklyn, who is still remembered on Bride and Groom as the groom who never got to the altar.

Scheduled to be married on the show last February, Sigmund discovered that his free honeymoon was to be spent in Princeton, N. J., instead of (as he had somehow anticipated) in Florida. When he complained at some length about this, Welt was bounced by Bride and Groom—and also by his bride.—Frank DuBlois

HAROLD V. COHEN'S Observation Post

Loved Dave Garroway's sobering thought on a recent Sunday night radio program after he learned that an English explorer, Sir Martin Frobisher, had explored Hudson Bay in 1577 and discovered that a strait has been named after him. "It's entirely possible," Garroway mused, "that if his explorations had been farther south, maybe the entire continent would have been named after him instead of after Americus Vespucci. Just think. We would now be living in the United States of Frobisher. We'd have programs like Jack Armstrong, All-Frobisher Boy; in baseball, we'd have the National and Frobisher Leagues; we'd celebrate 'I Am a Frobisher Day'; judges in Atlantic City would select Miss Frobisher of 1954; there'd be a House-Un-Frobisher Activities Committee and in the tobacco auctions, they'd yell 'Sold Frobisher'."

Dave Garroway

"All in all," concluded Garroway, "it was a pretty close call."

Have been catching quite a few of the Mr. Peepers re-runs this summer, and they're even pretty wonderful the second time . . . I'm afraid it would take 10 district attorneys to clean up the corruption in the town Mr. District Attorney serves in. Never saw so much lawlessness concentrated in one place . . . Suspense has never caught the same goose-pimpling quality on television it had on radio . . . Those TV Top Tunes sessions with Ray Anthony's band (the summer replacement for Perry Como) keep getting better and better. Sure hope they find a permanent place for Anthony after Como comes back. Television could use a good snappy quarter-hour show like The Young Man with a Horn's.

Very funny, that Rocky Graziano on Pantomime Quiz, which leads me to an old question of mine. Why doesn't some Pittsburgh sponsor put together a quizzer with both Jake Mintz and Fritzie Zivic on the panel? They'd be a laugh a second with the right kind of a format. The recent This Time Next Week never gave Zivic a chance, but I remember when Mintz was on Guest to Ghost here with Bill Burns and he tore the show apart with his mayhem on the King's English.

My Little Margie fans might like to hear this: Sheila Bond was in Pittsburgh a couple of weeks ago doing "Wish You Were Here" at Pitt Stadium. A short time before that, she co-starred in the same show in Dallas, Texas, with Gale Storm, and Sheila told me she's never met a nicer, friendlier or more co-operative person in show business in her life than "Margie." What's more, she added, Miss Storm is an excellent actress and played the role to the queen's taste, even better than it was done on Broadway and with just a week's preparation at that. Miss Bond should know; she was also starred in "Wish You Were Here" on Broadway. It's nice to hear such nice things about people who have earned the right to live high off the hog but don't.

Did you see the Summer Comedy Hour (Hollywood version) that featured a young man by the name of Jay Lawrence? He stole the show, I thought, with his impressions of Bill Corum and Clem McCarthy in their blow-by-blow descriptions of a fight. Lawrence is the kid brother, by the way, of Larry Storch, for whom the networks once had such high hopes, and I was just wondering whether a program that could use the talents of Jay and Larry might not be exactly the TV ticket for both of them. The networks may have given up on Storch, but I haven't; I still believe there's a vein of comedy in him they haven't properly tapped yet.

In my book, the best camera work of the year happened on the first Red Skelton Show of the summer while those sensational acrobats, the Amin Brothers, were doing their stuff. Remember how the camera was high in the air directly over them when the one brother was spinning the other around on his feet. Mighty effective—and it's so nice to be able to say at least one good thing about the Skelton opener.

"Garden in the Sea" on the U. S. Steel Hour only renewed the feeling I've long held that Dorothy McGuire is one of the finest young actresses we have around today. She made even her dull role in the movie "Three Coins in the Fountain" look good . . . I don't think Paul Gilbert is going anywhere with that new series called The Duke. The scripts aren't too hot in the first place and Gilbert over-plays the part of the ex-champion . . . Anybody see 85-year-old Bernarr Macfadden on Strike It Rich talking about what he was going to do at 99? The old man gave the program quite a lift that day.

Best description I've heard yet of one of those murder mystery clinkers: "Corn on the macabre" . . . After seeing Henny Youngman—verree, verree funny — on Stage Show with Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, I can't understand why there isn't more of Henny on TV. I got more chuckles out of his monologue than I did out of half of Bob Hope's last season . . . Bank on the Stars has switched from Bill Cullen to Jimmy Nelson and dummy but it's still no dice . . . Ben Blue's imitations of Charlie Chaplin just miss. They almost catch the real Chaplinesque flavor but not quite.

Ben Blue

I hope all the people who were up in arms when NBC dropped The Voice of Firestone are listening to it on ABC. That program is half-an-hour of sheer relaxation. No strain, no rush, no hurry, just mighty good listening . . . Place the Face has become a program I won't miss for the world if I can help it, and I'd say at least 50 percent of the reason I hate to miss it is Bill Cullen.

SPECIAL Carl (Bobo) Olson, champion, of Honolulu vs Rocky Castellani, challenger, of Cleveland, for the world's middleweight championship, 15 rounds. Jimmy Powers will report from the San Francisco, Cal., Cow Palace.

TV GUIDE RATINGS

	R	B	W	L	D	KO's
Olson	Champ	63	57	6	0	29
Castellani	1	63	56	5	2	13

Olson, defending his title for the second time, will be meeting a "ring cutie" and superb defensive fighter in Castellani. The titleholder is a strong, durable body-puncher who has met better men than Rocky during his career. It will be Rocky's first 15-round fight. Against four common foes—Gavilan, Hairston, Cartier and Gonzales—Olson has the better record.

"Chance" Coincidence

In your July 17 issue there was an article about Dennis James' Chance of a Lifetime, featuring contestant Mary Sullivan, 23-year-old singer from the Bronx. We would like to know how TV GUIDE knew Mary was the new winner before that particular program was telecast?—Mrs. Betty Ward, 1403 Maple St., McKeesport, Pa. — [If reader Ward goes over the article again, she will find that TV GUIDE in no way said that Mary Sullivan was or was not going to be the winner. Mary just happened to be the contestant chosen to show the preparation that goes into Chance of a Lifetime and by coincidence was also the winner.—Ed.]

James Daly

LOCATION: EUROPE

A FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT TELLS OF PING-PONG AND RED ATTACKS

James Daly, who succeeded Jerome Thor as the star of Foreign Intrigue, also has bowed off the filmed-abroad adventure series, and reportedly for the same reason: a yen for juicier acting plums nearer home.

That's the official explanation, anyway, although in recent weeks producer-director-writer Sheldon Reynolds has been juggling Foreign Intrigue's plans for next season. There's been talk, for instance, that the show's usual foreign correspondent will be converted into a hotel owner, and it's possible that a room clerk's life didn't appeal to the agile Daly.

Anyway, Gerald Mohr, a My Friend Irma alumnus, gets the overseas chore, and Daly will be free to concentrate on live acting stints, which he prefers.

Daly has no regrets. For one thing, he's scheduled to pay four or five guest visits to Mohr's Foreign Intrigue hostel. For another, his 39 week-after-week exposures on the show upped his stock considerably, having had far more impact on video viewers than 116 live TV engagements earlier.

DALY'S CHILDREN LEARNED TO SPEAK FRENCH TOO WELL

Moreover, he's indebted to Foreign Intrigue for treasured memories of fun, hard work and excitement during the filming of the series "on location" in Sweden, France, Italy and Germany.

"I took the job in the first place because I wanted to see Europe," he says. "Also, my wife and I have always wanted our kids to learn that there are other children in the world who don't necessarily speak English." With their three daughters, aged 11, 8 and 5, the Dalys established semi-permanent residence first in Paris, then in Stockholm, headquarters for the Intrigue company abroad. "The kids learned to speak French so fluently that often I can't understand them."

Although acting before TV cameras in many of the capitals of Europe may sound like a glamorous way to earn a living, Daly says it soon became a job like any other. "Things got pretty routine after a while. That's why I volunteered to do any action stunts myself whenever possible. Taking part in a fight or diving into cold water to rescue somebody, instead of relying on a double, presented a challenge."

He discounted, however, the lurid tales put out by overzealous press agents about how dangerous such work is. "I understand they've been saying I took too many chances by doing that stuff because the foreign actors in the show had never been taught how to pull their punches. Well, I never had an accident. Not even a black eye."

Because of the action called for by Intrigue scripts, Daly had to keep in good physical condition. He became a constant visitor at a Stockholm steam bath. He recalls sitting there one day, minding his own business, when the man next to him suddenly broke into his reverie by asking, "What do you think is the future of the steam bath in America?" Completely stymied by the question, Jim just looked at the man. It turned out that the stranger was a manufacturer of portable steam baths with ideas about exporting them.

A prized appliance in the home the Dalys rented in the suburbs of Stockholm was an automatic washer. It seems that virtually every Swedish family does its own wash, so the laundries, probably in order to survive, charge somewhat higher prices than they do in this country. "We had no idea of that," Daly said with a grin. "When we first moved to Daly reminisces with wife, Hope, about fun abroad. Three daughters went along.

Stockholm, we sent out one week's wash. Nothing out of the ordinary—just a week's laundry for a family of five. We got a bill for $65."

Despite the high cost of keeping the family in clean clothes, Jim found living in Sweden almost as exciting as working there. About a week before they moved into their new home, he was doing an Intrigue scene about a block away from the house. "The script called for me to drive a truck down the street. Naturally, everybody in the neighborhood gathered around to watch us work. I was a neighborhood character even before we moved in."

The Daly children soon made friends with their young neighbors. Because Jim installed a ping-pong table in the basement, the Daly home became the neighborhood gathering place. The adults, however, were far more reserved. One night, Daly recalls, the kids were playing in the basement and his doorbell rang. It was the father of one of the neighborhood boys, calling to take his son home. Anxious to make friends, Jim introduced himself and invited the caller inside to meet his wife. They got quite a jolt when they asked the man his name and he answered, "Charles Lindbergh." Turned out "Lindbergh" is almost as rare in Sweden as "Jones" is in this country.

Most of the supporting players in each Intrigue episode are recruited from on-the-spot performers. In Sweden, this means getting them from the Royal Dramatic Academy. "Acting with foreign players presents no problem at all," says Daly. "A good actor is a good actor, no matter what country he's from."

Officials in all countries which have served as Intrigue locales have been very cooperative, says Daly, and with good reason. The program spends American dollars and lures American tourists. As was to be expected, Stockholm's Communist newspaper kept blasting the Intrigue troupe in its editorials, claiming the American actors were "exploiting" Sweden and the rest of Europe.

Jim's final comment on Europe: "You can see more pretty girls in one block in the United States than you can on an entire street in Europe."

WHY 'MASQUERADE PARTY' LURES POLITICIANS, BANKERS AND BUSINESSMEN, TOO

On Masquerade Party, a lot of people wear the sort of getups they ordinarily wouldn't be caught dead in. Then, plucking clues from the camouflage, a panel guesses who they are.

The mastermind of this little game, producer Herbert Wolf, can't think of any sound reason why famous, esteemed and otherwise sensible citizens will clown on TV. Whatever the spur —publicity, fun, or just the lure of make-believe—many gaily go along with the gag. Wolf has managed to entice to his show: Minnesota's Senator Hubert Humphrey, Tennessee's Senator Estes Kefauver and Pennsylvania's Senator James H. Duff.

In digging around for disguises, Wolf came up with some choice ones: King Edward VII, sportsman king of England, for Errol Flynn; Napoleon, for the Brooklyn Dodgers' "Little Colonel"—Pee Wee Reese; Miss Havershaw of "Great Expectations," for the girl constantly reported on the verge of matrimony—Margaret Truman. Miss Truman's make-up required two hours. Most guests are metamorphosed in half that time, exclusive of fittings.

Some disguises seem obvious—and aren't. When Senator Henry M. Jackson, of the State of Washington, showed up as George Washington, panelist Ilka Chase pinpointed his disguise to the Army-McCarthy (Washington, D. C.) hearings, then asked, "Are you Stu Symington?"

College of Musical Knowledge

Tennessee Ernie Ford and contestant: he works hard.

PROGRAM OF THE WEEK

College of Musical Knowledge, the show that brought fame to Kay Kyser on radio and later on TV, is back this season for a summer run but with a new cast. Tennessee Ernie (last name: Ford) is now pitching questions to the studio "students" and the Frank De Vol orchestra dispenses the music. They're good but the show, unfortunately, is not. Perhaps the format is dated; it carries little appeal even in a summer not particularly noted for good programs.

For one thing, the questions are ridiculously easy and all too obvious to viewers who like to play the game along with studio contestants.

However, Tennessee Ernie, who established his fame as a hillbilly singer and humorist (remember his guest appearances on I Love Lucy last spring?), is entertaining. His frenetic antics keep the show moving rapidly and he displays an acceptable singing voice in the specialty number he does each week. Unlike the Kay Kyser orchestra, which featured such soloists as Ish Kabibble, the De Vol crew plays it straight and provides good musical backing for the quiz. The Cheerleaders are a sprightly vocal group, who add to the fun.

The show has sufficient physical production to meet TV's requirements. Some of the musical problems require contestants to dress in zany outfits and, of course, one contestant each week gets the "that's right, you're wrong" series that was once a Kyser trademark. Withal, though, College represents just one more instance of the TV networks' taking the easy way out this summer.—R.S.

The Blue Angel

The Blue Angel, which has the commendable temerity to replace Edward R. Murrow's See It Now during the summer months, represents one more almost desperate attempt on the part of TV to present a series of acts as something it actually isn't. In this instance, the acts are supposed to represent the constantly changing specialty numbers—the singers, dancers, magicians, comics, and instrumentalists—at the Blue Angel, an expensive little New York night club.

The Blue Angel is held together, to use the term in its loosest form, by Orson Bean, a stand-up comic of the Wally Cox school, who does indeed appear at the original Blue Angel. Still an undergraduate of the Cox school, Bean is perhaps the only comic extant who can grin from ear to ear on a straight line, close his eyes, raise his eyebrows and duck his head modestly, all at the same time. It is as though he is constantly saying, "If you can't laugh at my joke, laugh at my face; and if you can't laugh at my face, nobody really cares anyway." Well, sometimes he's pretty funny.—D.J.

FINE TUNING

J. Fred Muggs off on round-the-world trip. This is practically a "Simian's Rainbow."

If things are this good for a monkey, we certainly wasted a lot of time on evolution.

Muggs will even visit Africa, if that's a treat for a chimpanzee. He's packing an alligator-skin bag, and if he had stayed in Africa, he'd just be packing an alligator skin. Muggs didn't make good on his own; his old man was a friend of Tarzan.

When Muggs monkeys around, he really means around.

It isn't certain what the J. stands for, but it isn't jerk. He may be a chimp, but he's no chump. He's swapping the Garroway faces for the far-away places. He won't go to Moscow; Malenkov can't stand competition.

It turns out the Kremlin already has enough muggs.

One guy heard a TV star was aboard and bribed the airline stewardess to get the next seat. Was he ever surprised?

You wouldn't say this fellow got excited. All he did was rush up and ask the pilot how come a baboon was traveling first caboon.

Cheese as a food and hospitality as a practice are old standbys in Philadelphia.

Marian Kemp, whose kitchen show is seen Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays at 1:00 P. M. EDT on WCAU-TV, suggests Cheese Dip or Cheese Champs as sure-fire hits with friends who drop in for an evening of televiewing. Both are delicious, easy to prepare and serve.

The Cheese Dip can be served with crackers or potato chips, shrimp, celery stalks or carrot sticks.

Both snacks are topped to perfection these hot nights with a pitcher of ice-cold lemonade.

Cheese Champs

1c. shredded processed Cheddar cheese; ¼ c. pickle relish; 1 T. prepared mustard; ½ c. finely chopped peanuts (optional); 4 frankfurter or barbecue buns, split and spread with butter or margarine.

Combine all ingredients and spread generously on buns. Wrap filled buns individually in aluminum foil. Before serving, heat in a moderate oven (375° F.) about 20 min. Serve hot.

NOTE: The wrapped buns can be taken to a picnic and heated over a grill or campfire.

Snappy Cheese Dip

6 oz. pkg. cream cheese; 4 oz. blue cheese; 3 T. mayonnaise; 1½ t. grated onion; 1½ t. Worcestershire sauce.

Mash cream cheese with a fork. Add crumbled blue cheese, stirring. Add onion, mayonnaise and Worcestershire sauce.

Mix well. Or whip all, using your electric mixer.

Pile lightly in dish. Sprinkle with chopped parsley.

Serve with assorted crackers and potato chips. Makes 1½ cups.

Marian Kemp: she offers two tasty cheese snacks for a TV evening.

Frances Faces Life

Not Shakespeare, but Frances Reid and Phil Arthur make most of a TV play.

IN HER CASE, IT INCLUDES SHAKESPEARE & CEREAL

If the writers of Portia Faces Life wanted to be literal, they could easily retitle their little daytime drama "Frances Faces Life."

Because Frances Reid played Ophelia to Maurice Evans' "Hamlet" and Roxanne to Jose Ferrer's "Cyrano de Bergerac," it would seem obvious that starring in a TV soap opera represents a letdown in her career.

But Frances knows as much about public relations as she does about acting. She insists that playing Portia on TV is not a letdown and not mere financial security. "It's a different type of acting," she says, "and I think an actress must do all kinds, just like eating a balanced diet."

Portia is on the air only 15 minutes a day, five days each week, as compared with a Broadway show in which actors must work two-and-a-half hours each performance for eight performances a week. But, according to Frances, she works much longer hours now than she ever did on Broadway. She must learn a new script each day, usually about 20 pages of dialogue. "Although the show is telecast from 1:00 to 1:15 P.M. EDT, we're in the studio each day from 9:15 in the morning to about 3:00," she said. "Then I study the next day's script for an hour or two when I get home each evening. And, I must find time for costume fittings, the hairdresser and all the rest."

Frances is a native Texan but grew up in Berkeley, Calif. But even though she was that close to the movie industry, she never made a picture. She decided to try her luck and talent on Broadway instead, with tremendous success. In addition, she has played starring roles on some of TV's top dramatic shows, including Studio One, TV Playhouse, and Kraft Theater.

Frances, incidentally, wants it known that Portia is not a soap opera but a cereal (serial). "You see," she said, "we work for General Foods, so it has to be called a cereal."
